My teachers have always complimented me for turning in efficient work on time and for showing respect to my peers. I love working in group projects with other people because this is the time to really showcase our best ability and the kind worker we are. During my time in Genesys work training program, I spent a lot of time with my peers working through hard problems and finding solutions to solve them, especially a lot of coding problems. One of the biggest qualities in life is that I'm too nice when it comes to helping people. When I work with people, not only do I want to help them but I also want to make sure they remember this stuff. I help people with coding problems, I want to make sure they get the information they need in order to do well in class. And I really work well under pressure. When I feel like I can't complete a certain amount of tasks, I suddenly feel I have so much energy inside of me that I can complete all the tasks I need to do.